Re: Pending questions regarding the move of English 98

We understand that the move of English 98 from English to College Skills is planned for the 2010/2011 academic year. No plans have been presented to either department to explain or facilitate this move. For over a year now, both departments have repeatedly put forth a series of concerns and questions that have gone unanswered. And yet, this move cannot possibly be made without first addressing the following:

- 1) How many units will be allocated for the English 98 classes? Are there units attached for the lab? If so, what will be the total number of units for English 98 and the labs? Will those units be the same for fall and spring semester? Are there summer units allocated for English 98?

Fall 2010 has already been scheduled. For spring 2011, the units allocated for English 98 will be the same as they are for each semester: 18 units of class instruction in spring and fall; 6 units of class instruction in summer, subject to addition or subtraction due to enrollments. Units for both labs will continue to be offered at the current levels.

In summer 09 we offered 2 sections of 98. Summer lab hours will be assigned as they have in the past.

English 98 students will continue to receive one-on-one tutoring in the Writing Center.

- 2) What will be the schedule for labs and classes and who will create the schedule?

The Writing Center will move into the current Media Center space. The English Skills lab will remain where it is. The separate functions of the two labs will be maintained as they currently are.

The schedule for labs and classes will be drafted by chairs, working with their respective deans/directors for each area. Chair John Sutherland will draft the schedule of English classes and the Writing Center, and Dean Snyder will have final approval. Chair Barbara Bonander will draft the schedule of classes and labs for College Skills, with the final approval of Director Susan Andrien.

- 3) How will computers be divided?
